

WINSTON-SALEM, N.C. (PRWEB) JULY 23, 2019

Odigia, a leading learner engagement platform, is pleased to announce its partnership with the California State University (CSU) Affordable Learning Solutions (AL$) group. The partnership represents CSU's dedication to improving student engagement and outcomes, while reducing the cost of education for CSU students.

The partnership will enable faculty from the 23 CSU campuses to leverage Odigia's learner engagement platform to deliver an affordable, flexible, and easy-to-use learning solution that increases learner engagement, outcomes, and retention. In addition to openly licensed (OER) content built in Odigia, faculty will have access to MERLOT's repository of 80,000+ learning objects, as well as SkillsCommons content focused on preparing students for success in higher education and beyond. Faculty and students from the California Community College and University of California systems are also able to participate under the CSU Odigia partnership.

"Odigia is excited to partner with innovative leaders in education, such as AL$, to provide more relevant and engaging learning experiences that improve access, affordability, and outcomes for students in the CSU, UC, and Community College system." said Joshua Moe, CEO of Odigia.

About Odigia

Different by design. SIMPLE. POWERFUL. ENGAGING. Anchored in a simple philosophy that different learners have different needs, Odigia removes the barriers created by the one-size fits-all-model of education. Odigia empowers institutions, publishers, and employers to deliver engaging learning experiences that improve learner engagement, outcomes, and retention.
